Dear Victor,

I enclose accounts from the American publishers, White Light Pentacles / Sacred Spirit Products.. As you will see there is no money due for the moment but I understand that they are currently spending more on advertising than they have done previously, so perhaps before long we will receive something.

A point has arisen which I must inform you about - which is Alex's overdraft at Barclays Bank of £215.00. He pledged royalties from the American Publishers as security for his overdraft. They are now enquiring about this revenue.

I think we should not try to avoid honouring this pledge to the bank and anyway it may be difficult to avoid the issue. The present position with the Barclays manager is that he is prepared to wait for another two months before pressing the matter further.

If you have no objection would you please sign the attached note for
